

Dear Colleagues,

We are pleased to announce that Sidney Kimmel Medical College at Thomas Jefferson University/TJUH Department of Psychiatry and Human Behavior is now offering a one-year ACGME-accredited fellowship program in Addiction Psychiatry.

Philadelphia is facing the worst urban opioid crisis in the country. Many of the city's residents require treatment for concurrent substance-related and psychiatric disorders. Unfortunately, despite increasing demand for addiction services, there is a shortage of specialists in many clinical settings.

It is the goal of our Addiction Psychiatry Fellowship Program to train the next generation of addiction specialists to meet the needs of a tremendously underserved population. Fellows will become proficient in providing compassionate, appropriate, and effective care to patients and their families in a wide variety of clinical settings. At the successful completion of the program, fellows will be eligible to apply for board certification in Addiction Psychiatry from the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology (ABPN).

MD/DO applicants must have successfully completed or be in the final year of a four-year ACGME-accredited residency program in General Psychiatry and must be eligible for board certification by the ABPN before starting their Addiction Psychiatry fellowship training.
